

From my heart to yours...

In about a month we will be hosting a women's conference at _____ with a brand-new concept—this conference will include girls and teens third grade and up! The conference is being designed to incorporate elements that are relevant for all ages and life stages, which is sometimes challenging to do. How do we make a conference that isn't boring to a third grader, but also doesn't feel too kid-oriented? How can we bring the generations together in a meaningful way that will show we love and value all the girls and women in attendance?

These are the questions we're endeavoring to answer and it's for a very important reason... We want to move toward the next generation, to usher these young women into our midst so they will know that they are known, loved, and prayed for by the women in the church. We want the next generation to know that they are already part of the church—that they have spiritual sisters and spiritual mothers all around them. And we want to model what intergenerational ministry can look like.

It has been well-documented that Millennials and Gen Z have been steadily leaving the church. There are many reasons for this trend, but one reason is that those who have left the church were never really part of the church in the first place. A girl can grow up attending church her entire life, but never grab hold of the faith of her parents. She can sit in the pew or attend youth group, but never really belong.

We want our church daughters to know they belong. We want our church daughters to see that they are part of a family that extends beyond their immediate families. And most importantly, we want our church daughters to know Jesus!

With this in mind, will you join us at the Made for More Conference? Will you come to see what this intergenerational event looks like? Will you come with the intention of welcoming the next generation to worship and learn and serve right alongside us? Bring your daughters, your friends, your mother, or just come on your own. We want to see 9-year-olds right alongside 99-year-olds, all part of God's church and worshiping our savior together!

What to expect: a warm welcome, praiseful worship music, great speakers, times to chat with your neighbors, a fun atmosphere highlighting our various generations, special desserts and delicious food, women from many different PCA churches in our region, a well-curated bookstore, exhibitors highlighting several ministries, and a meaningful time of connecting with our sisters in the Lord!

All conference details and the registration link can be found here: [insert link]

Sign up by ___ to get the reduced rate!

Note: the registration form will ask you to mark which church you attend. The churches are listed in alphabetical order by CITY NAME.

We hope you will join us!